

Paul Turner
Director, Product Management Department
AJA Video Systems

Paul Turner has been actively engaged in the television industry for over 40 years, focusing on developing new technologies into products which fit the needs of end customers worldwide. In the recent past, Paul's focus has been on hardware and software systems which make use of the many digital formats now available to the industry, serving as a central liaison point for a number of vendors into standards and industry bodies such as SMPTE and AMWA (where he served for several years as a member of the board of directors).

Paul currently manages the Product Management group at AJA, while simultaneously acting as the Product Manager for the Ki Pro and HELO product lines. Paul started his career as a studio design engineer at the BBC and has since held engineering and senior management positions at Grass Valley Group, Abekas Video Systems, Scitex Digital Video, Sony Electronics, Pinnacle Systems, Omneon Video Networks, Harmonic, and Telestream before joining AJA in 2020. Paul has published over a dozen technical papers on a variety of industry topics and has presented at conferences and exhibitions around the globe. He holds an Honors degree in Electronic Engineering from the University of Liverpool in England.